

In the present world, emotional control, or mental disorder precisely, becomes a critical psychological problem in many places around the world, especially under the pandemic triggered by Covid-19. Data from the World Health Organization shows that 264 million people around the world are affected by depression, 45 million people affected by bipolar disorder, Schizophrenia and other psychoses influence 20 million people worldwide, etc. Any kind of mental disorder causes millions of people into trouble without exception, and it seems more obvious in low and middle income countries to seek treatments for it.

As the Covid-19 pandemic broke out in 2020, these problems that already existed before became worse. Therefore, a tool designed for social media customers, like twitter and facebook, to monitor their mental status changes. People can get notification when some of their social media updates start getting worse which seems abnormal.